Miss Stella Lipman, of Washington, and Mrs. C. G. Hequembourg was a brilliant success.

The programme was an exacting one for both performers, beginning, as it does, with Richard Strauss's recent work, the Sonate in C minor with its group of plane solos and ending with Mrs. Hequembourg's group of violin solos. This splendid interpretation of Mass Lipman and Mrs. Hequembourg's group of violin solos. This splendid interpretation of Mass Lipman and Mrs. Hequembourg's group of violin solos. This splendid interpretation of Mass Lipman and Mrs. Hequembourg's group of violin solos. This splendid interpretation of Mass Lipman and Mrs. Tennessee contributed a number of modern ensemble work for violin and plano.

Other delightful numbers were the beautiful aria and gavotte from Bache; the exquisite Abendilled of Schumann, avid the Parsifal Paraphrase, arranged by Wilhelmi, Miss Lipman displayed plendid technique and temperament in abundance. She gave striking evidence of versatility in her artistic rendition of all work, solo.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

Whatever your occupation may be, and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fall to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Professor Charles Ellot Norton.

THE KEY-BOARD.

By WILLIAM WATSON.

Another selection from Watson, together with his portrait, autograph and blogged teal sketch has already been printed in this series. The following poem about plane is from "Collected Poems of William Watson" (John Lane, New York London).

IVE-AND-THIRTY black slaves, Half a hundred white, All their duty but to sing For their Queen's delight, Now with throats of thunder, Now with dulcet lips, While she rules them royally With her finger-tips!

When she quits her palace, All the slaves are dumb-Dumb with dolour till the Queen Back to court is come; Dumb the throats of thunder, Dumb the dulcet lips, Lacking all the sovereignty Of her finger-tips.

Dusky slaves and pallid, Ebon slaves and white, When the Queen was on her throne, How you sang to-night! Ah, the throats of thunder! Ah, the dulcet lips! Ah, the gracious tyrannies Of her finger-tips!

Silent, silent, silent, All your voices now; Was it then her life alone Did your life endow? Waken, throats of thunder! Waken, dulcet lips! Touched to immortality By her finger-tips.

THE MOONSHINERS.

Shepard's Moving Pictures at

Shepard's Moving Pictures at the Academy To-day.

One of the most thrilling of all dramatic stories presented in moving pictures is that of the Moonshiners, and of the features of the all new programme of Archie L. Shepard's high-class moving pictures on their roturn engagement at the Academy this afternoon and to-night. As the story is unfolded senses are thrilled and the heart is touched by the strong sympathy the scenes and action elicits. No more heart interest has been drawn from more heart interest has been drawn from a motion picture because the strong sympathy. The illicit manufacture of liquor by these mountaineers is in their eyes no crime, gad the sense of self-protection is to them a matter of course. The sweet devotion of the moonshiner's wife is characteristic in the story, and the brave woman's defense when her husband's life is threatened, is a true picture of feminine heroism. The "still"—in guil operation forms a part of the story, while the revenue spy and officers play their part.
